A world Exposition is a global event that brings people and their innovation ideas together from across the globe to address issues that impact our lives.

At the heart of the Expo is The Grand Ring, a distinctive and iconic feature that serves as a main pathway for visitors to navigate between different areas. Its circular design creates a sheltered space that can shield attendees in the event of unfavourable weather conditions, ensuring a comfortable and enjoyable experience for all visitors.

Covering an area of 61,035 square metres, with a circumference of two-kilometre and a diameter of 700 metres, the Ring has been officially recognised by Guinness World Records as the largest wooden architectural structure in the world.

Constructed with a blend of modern and traditional building techniques, and utilising natural materials like Japanese cedar and Japanese cypress, the Ring embodies the concept of "Unity in Diversity."

The Expo includes approximately 160 pavilions from participating nations, regions, international organisations, and private companies, each pavilion showcasing its unique perspectives related to the central theme of the Expo.

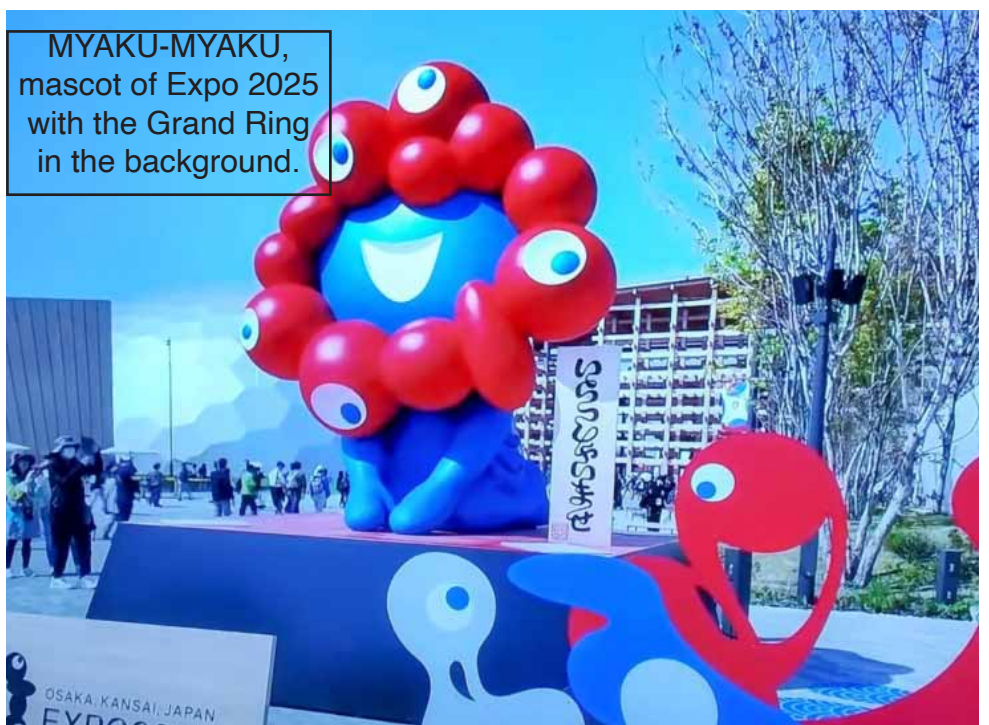

For example, China's pavilion draws inspiration from traditional calligraphy scrolls and bamboo slips, conveying the philosophy that humanity should respect, follow and live harmoniously with nature. The pavilion also features lunar soil samples from the Chang'e missions, alongside advanced humanoid robots.

The Expo aims to function as a People's Living Lab, encouraging collaboration and dialogue centred on tackling global issues under the sub-themes of "Saving Lives," "Empowering Lives," and "Connecting Lives."

It provides a platform for interaction, networking and inspiring innovative solutions toward a sustainable future.

Adding to the experience is MYAKU-MYAKU, the expo's mascot, which resembles a red multi-eyed creature.

Organisers are expecting around 28.2 visitors over the next six months.

This year the display of 30,000 ceramic poppies honours the end of the Second World War by Mylene

On Thursday, May 8, 1945, Germany officially surrendered, marking a day of celebration for the Allies of World War II.

2025: Europe, East & West, will have enjoyed 80 years of Peace, except that now Russia wants to eliminate Ukraine.

In November 2014, "Blood Swept Lands and Seas of Red" was an art installation in the Tower of London moat that ran from July to November to honour the 100th anniversary of the start of WW1.

The discussions confirmed the collective political will to promote food security, improve nutrition and facilitate the trade of agricultural and food products in accordance with existing phytosanitary requirements of each Member State.

The Summit recommended the inclusion of the Regional Food Security and Nutrition Food Programme of the Indian Ocean Commission in the national policies of the Member States.

During his intervention at the Opening Ceremony, Prime Minister Navin Ramgoolam laid emphasis on the urgency for Member States to forge stronger relationships so as to collectively deal with the adverse impacts of changes in the geopolitical and international trade landscapes. He underscored the necessity for countries to enhance resilience by accelerating regional integration across all sectors. He called for all Member States to join forces to create an innovative blue economy that generates growth and employment while respecting the ecosystems.

The Prime Minister also underlined the intricate link between marine resources and the importance for maintaining maritime security.

Thematic Round Tables were held during the Summit, allowing focused discussions between Member States and stakeholders. During the Round Table on food security, connectivity and intra-regional exchanges, the Prime Minister called for bolder actions to fully leverage on the significant marine resources of the Indian Ocean, without, however, compromising its long-term sustainability.

In the margins of the Summit, the Prime Minister had a one-on-one meeting with the President of France and discussed several issues of mutual interest, including the issue of Tromelin, which had been dormant since October 2014, closer cooperation in economic and cultural fields, as well as our con-

Some of the Key Challenges and Issues Related to Diaspora Engagement

In its Decision Meeting of 9 May 2025 (See previous page), the Government Information Service (GIS) mentions that the Cabinet took note of the organisation of a Diaspora Initiatives Stocktaking Workshop to be held by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Regional Integration and International Trade in collaboration with the International Organisation for Migration on 14 and 15 May 2025 in Mauritius.

The workshop would serve as a forum to refine the Diaspora Engagement Action Plan, bridging gaps and sharing insights, to leverage diaspora contribution towards sustainable development.

The main objectives of the workshop would be with the Mauritian diaspora to:

- (a) identify the key challenges and issues related to diaspora engagement;
- (b) assess the National Diaspora Engagement Action Plan; and
- (b) harmonise Government's actions to facilitate effective and efficient

The Intention behind the workshop

It would seem that the Government intends to find out about the potential of the Mauritian Diaspora to contribute towards the development of Mauritius in whatever field beneficial to the country.

Whether this is the case or not, it is worth remembering that in all relationship there exists a policy of Give and Take. If Mauritius wishes to know what contributions the diaspora of its people may bring to the motherland, the question to be asked is what does the diaspora expects from the motherland in return.

Citizenship

First and foremost, they want the right to dual citizenship for themselves and for their offspring. The children of most overseas Mauritians have already been registered as Mauritian national as well. India grants the Indian citizenship to all people of Indian origin living outside the country who want to acquire the Indian nationality. Is Mauritius, as well, willing to follow in the same direction?

On the other hand, Mauritius will have to find out, first and foremost, the size of the Mauritian diaspora. The Civil Status Office may have to keep a special register in order to be able to know at any one time the extent of the Mauritian community outside the island of whatever generation. If this is not already the case, it will come a time when there will be more Mauritians living outside Mauritius than in Mauritius itself.

Right to vote

The diaspora is claiming the right to vote at general elections held in Mauritius. Though at one time the Prime Minister was against the idea, he has of late declared that the conditions have changed. He recently said that it is unfair that foreign nationals are allowed to vote in Mauritius while people with Mauritian nationality are deprived of this right.

With a population of 1.3 billion, India faces no problem with a few millions of overseas Indians voting at elections held in India. The overseas voters cannot have any influence over the results of an election in the mother country. What about miniscule Mauritius? Will the country have to act in accordance to the dictate of its outside voters?

Old Age Pension (OAP)

Old Age Pension in non-contributory in Mauritius. Any Mauritian who has attained the age of 60, subject to a few months of minimum of residential requirements of six months, is entitled to the Old Age Pension. In England, the OAP is contributory and is paid from the age of 66 to qualified contributors. In France, where it is also contributory, the pension is payable to qualified people from the age of 64.

So, Mauritius is facing a situation where overseas Mauritians are coming to the country to reside for the required minimum period of stay that allows them to qualify for the OAP. The pension is payable as long as they do not stay outside Mauritius for a period of more than six months. So, once the 60+ years old overseas Mauritians become recipients of Old Age Pension in Mauritius, they do what is called the va-et-vient between Mauritius and the country where they are presently domiciling, where it is immaterial where they reside because they will have contributed to qualify for the pension.

They have to go back to their country of adoption because that's where their home really is, and where live their families, children and grandchildren.

The big question is how long will generous Mauritius be able to foot the bill, and will the children of the migrants' children likewise qualify for OAP in Mauritius?
